RELIEVING THE POOR.

For once the good people of Roanoke give thanks for a sight of mud. The thaw set in in good earnest yesterday and sun shone warm for the first time in thirty days. If the start of yesterday holds good outdoor work will be actively resumed at once.

With this there will be an immense relief of the suffering of the indigent poor, for four-fifths of them suffer from lack of work.

There will be, however, plenty of opportunity for charitable work. The action of the mass meeting yesterday in approving the plan of placing the work of relief in the hands of the Ladies' Benevolent Union relieves THE TIMES of the pleasant duty of receiving funds, provisions and clothes for the poor. In money, food and garments THE TIMES will have to-day turned over to Miss J. M. Woltz and her noble-hearted assistants amounts and articles aggregating in value some $400.

The good work will go on, and to-day a room will be procured in a central location, to be used as a depot for supplies. The promptness with which relief has been forthcoming is one of its most interesting features.

THE TIMES BUILDING AND INDUSTRIAL EDITION is making rapid progress toward completion. It will be the most thorough exposition of Roanoke's growth and progress ever undertaken.

RELEASE OF EGAN.

Welcomed by Irish Friends When He Leaves Portland Prison.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—James Francis Egan, convicted of participation in Birmingham, England, in 1884, in an Irish dynamite plot and sentenced to twenty years' penal servitude, has been released from Portland prison on account of ill health by order of Home Secretary Aiscount.

Egan owes his release to the persistent efforts of Mr. Redmond, leader of the Parnellites. On his release Mr.
Egan was met by John Barry, who had left London for Portland on Saturday morning. Mr. Barry drove in a closed carriage to the prison and waited in the governor's house until the released prisoner made his appearance. Hearty greetings were exchanged by the two men when they met.

Egan was dressed in ordinary clothes, which had been given to him by the prison officials. Egan and Mr. Barry lost no time in entering the van used for released prisoners and driving to the railway station, where they took the train for London. On the way Egan asked many questions about the home rule bill. Egan traveled with Mr. Barry as a first-class passenger, but first presented his prisoner's discharge, which entitled him to reduced rates.

The original intention of the government was to release Egan on Monday, but the visit of Mr. Barry caused them to alter their plan, as it was feared that the arrival of Egan in London on Monday would be attended with a demonstration.

Egan visited the National Liberal Club in London on Saturday night. He conversed there with Messrs. Macdonnell, Donald Sullivan and other Irish members of parliament. He proceeded to Birmingham alone on Sunday morning. He was met on his arrival there by his wife, who keeps a small fancy shop in Birmingham.

Although thinner and grayer than when he entered Portland prison Egan looks fairly healthy. Speaking of the severity of the treatment of the political prisoners Egan said: "Nine years in Portland are equal to eighteen years of ordinary life. But there is plenty of life in me yet."

No Performance Last Night.

The "Power of the Press," which was to have appeared at the Academy of Music last night, failed to put in an appearance, and consequently there was no performance.

Meeting of the Roanoke Development Company.

The stockholders of the Roanoke Development Company will hold a meeting to-day. Much important business will be transacted.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

Interesting Sermons Preached at the Various Churches.

The churches in the city were more largely attended Sunday than for the past three weeks. There were several accessions made to the churches after the services.

At St. John's Episcopal Church the pastor, Rev. W. H. Meade, preached at 11 a. m. from the subject, "I Also am A Man Under Authority." Services were held at 4:15 p. m. in the afternoon, conducted by the pastor. There was no service at night.

Rev. S. K. Cox, pastor of Grace M. E.
Church, preached at 11 a. m. from Matthew 21:22, "And as they ate he said unto them, 'Verily I say unto you, one of you shall betray me.' And they were exceeding sorrowful, and began every one of them to say unto Him, 'Lord, is it I?'" At night the sermon was preached from Isaiah 32:2, "A man should be as a covert from the tempest; as rivers of water in a dry place; as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land; yea, to open wide thy hand to thy brother, to the stranger and to the poor."

At Greene Memorial Church the pastor Rev. W. H. Hamner preached at 11 a. m. from Acts 4:7—"What Power or by What Name Have ye Done This. By the Name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth." The theme, "Power From on High." The text at night was from Deut. 15:11, "The Poor Shall Never Cease From the Land, Therefore I Command ye to Open Wide thy Hand to thy Brother, to the Stranger and to the Poor."

At the Calvary Baptist Tabernacle the pastor, Rev. R. R. Acree, preached at 11 a. m. on the subject of "The Reconciliation of Christ." The theme at night was "God's Ultimate Object in Reconciliation." After the services the hand of fellowship was extended to four new members.

member Me When Thou Comest Into Thy Kingdom."

pastor, Rev. W. C. Campbell, preached in the morning on the subject of "Jacob Wrestling with the Angel." At night Rev. Lewis Reiter preached from the text, "Ye are the salt of the earth," Matt. 5:12.

At the Reformed Church the pastor, Rev. Lewis Reiter, preached from a text found in Romans 12:17. At night he occupied the pulpit at the First Presbyterian Church.

Rev. C. H. Buchanan, pastor of the Vinton M. E. Church, preached at 11 a. m. on the subject, "Shining as light in the darkness." The subject of the evening discourse was, "The spirit of gambling getting into religion." There were two accessions to the church.

At the First Baptist Church Rev. Dr.
Harrison preached in the morning on the subject of "Revivals." The subject of the discourse in the evening was "Service in Christ." The revival services will be continued throughout the week.

At St. James M. E. Church the pastor, Rev. G. T. D. Collins, preached at 11 o'clock from Psalm 61:7, "Lead Me to the Rock That is Higher Than I." At night Rev. P. H. Whisner, presiding elder of the Baltimore conference, occupied the pulpit. After the morning services there was one accession to the church.

At St. Mark's Lutheran Church the pastor, Rev. Oliver L. Miller, preached at 11 a. m. from Psalm 52:3, "Out of Zion the Beauty of God Has Shined." Dr.
Miller dwelt upon the evil influences of having what is known as the social card parties. The theme for the evening discourse was "Lo, Master, We Have Left All and Followed Thee."

At Trinity M. E. Church Rev. S. D.
Ferguson, the pastor, preached in the morning from John 7:4, "Never man spoke like this man." At night he preached from Philippians 4:13, "I can do all things through Christ, to strengthen me."

Rev. R. C. Anderson, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, preached from Ephesians 19:3, "And to know the love of Christ which surpasseth knowledge that ye might be filled with the fullness of God." "Solomon" was the subject of the evening discourse.

Rev. S. L. Rice, pastor of the United Brethren's Church, preached at 11 a. m. from the text, "Seven Golden Candesticks," Revelations, 1:20. The text at night was found in First Kings, 12:5.

Mrs. Annie W. Jordan

Of 165 Tremont St., Boston, was in very poor health, from bad circulation of the blood, having rush of blood to the head, numb spells, and chills, and the physician said the veins were almost bursting all over her body. A collusion with a double runner brought a neutralization of the liver, causing great suffering. She could not take the doctor's medicine, so took

Hood's Sarsaparilla

and soon fully recovered, and now enjoys perfect health. She says she could praise Hood's Sarsaparilla all day and then not say enough.

DR. VANDYKE WARNS HIS CHURCH.

Enforcement of the Theory of Inerrancy of Bible Manuscripts Dangerous.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—The Rev. Dr.
Henry Vandyke, pastor of the Brick Presbyterian Church, at Fifth avenue and Thirty-seventh street, told his congregation to-day that if the theory of the original Scriptures was to be set up as a test of his orthodoxy he would be driven from the Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Vandyke's note of warning was uttered in unmistakable language, and he pointed out the dangers ahead if the Briggs case was to be pushed on to the end. He said in substance:

This whole controversy is not a question about the Bible as it is, and has nothing to do with the infallibility of the Scriptures. It is simply a question about the difference between the Bible as it is and the Bible as it was in the original manuscripts. This is the real theory of the inerrancy of the original manuscripts and of the Holy Scriptures as they now exist. This particular theory proposes to divide the church.

There are some things on which we are all agreed so far as doctrines are concerned.

First. We are all agreed that the Bible, as it is, contains some of the handiwork of man, and also some of the inbreathing of the Lord.

Second. We are agreed that all the discrepancies in the Bible are amazingly few and small and unimportant.

Third. We are all agreed that the advance of modern scholarship tends to remove the discrepancies of the Bible.
The theory of the inerrancy of the original manuscripts is not susceptible of proof. The theory moves entirely in the region of speculation. No living man has seen the original manuscripts and there is no authentic description of them.

We ought not to allow this theory to become a test of orthodoxy. It is unconstitutional, and was never enforced as a condition for our entrance into the church and ministry. To enforce it now would be illegal.

For these reasons I will have nothing to do with the theory of the inerrancy of the original Bible manuscripts. I neither affirm it nor deny it. This theory may be true or it may be purely imaginary. I am perfectly content in my ignorance on the subject and propose to maintain it.

The Bible as it is is good enough for me. I for one intend to hold fast to the book as it is, and if I am driven from the Presbyterian Church because I know nothing of the original manuscripts, it will be my comfort and will help me in preaching the Gospel in the wide field of Christian work.

It is our first duty not to withdraw from the Presidency. It would be like abandoning a ship in stormy weather.
Our consciences demand that we uphold our convictions. It is our duty to study, be quiet, and mind our own business. Let us mildly but firmly oppose every attempt to enforce the theory of inerrancy, as the new test of our ortho-doxy, or to disturb the liberties we now enjoy.

ARISTOCRATIC YOUTH IN THE RING.

"Cob" Coleman and Robert Dunham, of Chicago, Fight Over a School Girl.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—Two youngsters, who will be society men when they are old enough to shave more than once in two weeks, battered each other with hard gloves in a mansion in the most aristocratic part of Dearborn avenue, which is the most aristocratic street of the North Side.

The young fellows were "Cob" Coleman and Robert Dunham, the son of the proprietor of one of the largest tug lines on Lake Michigan, and the cause of the combat was the right to pay addresses to a young lady who is not yet out of school. The timekeeper of the affair was Eddy Henrotin, son of Chicago's largest stock broker, and consul from Belgium to Chicago, while one of Dunham's seconds was Cline Kennells, son of the general counsel of the Pullman Company.

The fight came off at 2 o'clock and was a hot affair from start to the end of the fourth round, when Timekeeper Henrotin counted out young Dunham and announced that the victory and the spoils pertaining thereto were the property of Coleman. The fight opened easily, and in the second Dunham got in one on Coleman's ear and would have settled things then and there if he had not had the best of it and knocked Dunham down several times, which so dazed the young man that he could do nothing in the fourth but stand still and be knocked down and out.

John Luning's Mental Condition.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The facts as to the sudden mental derangement of John Luning, son of a San Francisco millionaire, and his subsequent removal from the yacht Alert, at Nile, to Paris, is as follows: Luning began to act peculiarly when half way across the Atlantic.
He grew rapidly worse until the arrival at Nice, where the friends whom he was entertaining, decided that for his own welfare, they ought to place him under restraint. They telegraphed to Charles Peters, formerly Luning's schoolmate in San Francisco and now a student of art in Paris, the details concerning Luning's condition. Peters, Frank Unger and Harry Gillig went to Nice and took Luning back to Paris.
They summoned to the hotel Dr. Warren Bey, an American physician, and subsequently they called Dr. Charcot.
Upon the recommendation of both physicians Luning was removed to a private asylum. His friends then cabled to London for an English physician, and this physician will bring Luning to London shortly. A dispatch from Paris says that Luning planned to marry in Paris a young woman from New York, who was there awaiting his arrival. The dispatch further states that Luning was formerly a conductor on a New York elevated railway, when by his father's death, he became heir to $2,000,000.

DYNAMITE EXPLOSIONS.

Intense Excitement Created in Rome—Nobody Hurt—Property Damaged.

ROME, Jan. 23.—Dynamite bombs exploded almost simultaneously this afternoon before the Hotel d'Angleterre and in the garden of the proprietor's house in the Via San Claudio. The hotel was partly wrecked. Plaster was shaken from the walls and ceilings, beams were sprung from the walls and the floors of several rooms sagged two or three feet before the occupants could run out.
Every window and every piece of crockery, glassware and bric-a-brac in the hotel was smashed.

The front wall was cracked in three places to the second floor, and at the door where the bomb exploded, a large hole was torn. Nobody was injured, although the hotel had more than 100 lodgers at the hour of the explosion.
The people ran out into the streets without waiting to take money or jewelry. They were surrounded at once by a crowd, and a company of gendarmes was required to keep them all clear of the street in front of the hotel. At first the front wall was expected to fall.

After an examination the commissary announced that there was no immediate danger and that the lodgers might return to pack their trunks. Several women refused to return and their belongings were cared for by the police.
Before evening all had left for other hotels. The proprietor said this evening that the hotel and contents were almost a total loss. Not a whole piece of furniture was left in the building, walls of houses near the hotel were cracked and all the windows were broken.

The proprietor's house in the Via San Claudio was less damaged. All the windows were smashed for 100 yards on every side. No walls were cracked, however, and but for the breakage of glassware, crockery and furniture little harm was done. Nobody was injured, as the family had left home for the afternoon.

Immediately after the explosion the report went abroad that the anarchists were again at work. The proprietor of the Hotel d'Angleterre, however, says he is convinced that both explosions were caused by a man whom he discharged recently from his service.
